BEHIND THE GREASE PAINT

The cast of "The Gazebo," in Red Mask tradition, is a combination of experienced players and those stepping on the Palace Theater stage for the first time.

The play's husband-wife twosome, Wayne Cody and Barbara Judy, carry on this tradition. Mrs. Judy, whose real-life husband is also a member of the cast, will be appearing in her fifth Red Mask play. Cody, the rotund rascal of Danville television, is trodding the Palace boards for the first time, although he made his city stage debut in the Danville Light Opera production, "Red Mill."

Others stepping from backstage into the footlights for the first time will be Mrs. Sunny Davis, Glen Thomas, Ted Harpley and Harry Eisenhower. Four other cast members will be appearing in their second production. Russ Pollitt and Bob Duff were cast members of "Teahouse of the August Moon," while Jim Williams was a police surgeon in "Witness for the Prosecution" and Dwight Ballard was the bus driver in the year's first play, "Bus Stop."

Veterans of many Red Mask character parts are two fulfilling the same type roles this time. Harold Judy and Margaret Fitzgerald have appeared in several little theater comedies.
